

Central Omaha Trails

The trails in central Omaha mostly follow the network of streams and channelized waterways that wind across the city. There are also several smaller connecting trails that link the main trails and parks. The "Keystone Trail" is the longest in this area, and provides an alternative to automobiles for traveling through the city. The "Elmwood Trail" is a scenic by-way that connects the "Keystone Trail" to other trails to the northeast. The "Big Papio Trail" takes the rider through scenic neighborhoods and open spaces, with many parks along the way, and connects to Sarpy County and Bellevue.
