Number of Families

A family is defined by the U.S. Census Bureau as two or more persons who are living together and related by blood, marriage, or adoption. Census tracts with large number of families are located in areas of high density housing.

Average Family Size

The average family size for Omaha census tracts ranges from 2.39 to 3.95 people. Larger families are found in Millard, West Omaha, South and North Omaha. Low family sizes are in the older suburbs of Westside and Rockbrook.
