Most of the population in Omaha is white, and many census tracts in Omaha have a very high percentage of white population. The highest percentages are found in the newer suburban developments around the fringe of the city, the Rockbrook and Westside areas, as well as the Fairacres and Aksarben areas east of 72nd Street. North Omaha has a very small percentage of white population, as low as 6.9% in some census tracts.