This map uses the "hill-shading technique" to depict elevation in Omaha. Slopes facing the west and northwest are illuminated giving it a three-dimensional appearance. The topography of the area has been shaped by erosion caused by the tributaries of the Missouri River.